

Business Marketing Association Honors Tradeshow Design

PG Exhibits' Takes Home a Gold and Silver Key Award

Denver, Colorado – June 12, 2006 - PG Exhibits, an award-winning leader in 3D exhibit design and logistics management today announced the Colorado Chapter of the Business Marketing Association honored them with a gold and silver award in two separate categories.

PG Exhibits was awarded the only Gold Key Award in the large tradeshow exhibit category for the work they did for Vonage. PG Exhibits was charged with building a 20x50 exhibit with kiosks that augmented and extended the Vonage brand across the Consumer Electronics Show floor.

"PG Exhibits' design allowed us to push the envelope and incorporate our personality with a streamlined, high tech design," said Matthew Deatrick, former vice president of sales for Vonage. "We were the talk of the show. Event Design Magazine listed us in their top 33 exhibits worth noting. We signed up 400 retail consumers in three days and none of this would have been possible without the talent of PG Exhibits."

PG Exhibits also took home a Silver Key Award for the work they did for Innovative Spinal Technologies (IST). PG Exhibits was hired to create a 20x40 design to help the company secure venture funding. The design took an abstract form of the human body. PG Exhibits incorporated curved columns and ridges like a spine that ran the length of the exhibit.

"We've spent the last few years growing our operations to serve and compete in a national and international marketplace," said Jim McGrath, president of PG Exhibits. "We are centrally located and we've developed a self-sustaining business with our own award winning designers, print, wood and metal shops. The majority of our client base is local but we've seen a growing interest from companies outside of Colorado in search of outstanding talent and strategy with regard to their three dimensional presence. We've got the right talent and the right price point to deliver true value and it's great when organizations such as the BMA validate your good work. It's a proof point for us that we're doing things right."
