

PG Exhibits is off to a great 2006.

We're proud to report we've grown and we're continuing to do so. I wanted to take this opportunity to give you a mid-year update on our accomplishments to date:

Awards & Recognition:

We kicked the New Year off by announcing our Creative Director, Rod Pacheco's induction into the Art Institute of Colorado's Hall of Fame, a very prestigious honor. He along with our other talented creative staff are continually creating leading-edge designs that break the mold and tell very unique stories.

In January of this year, Event Design Magazine identified one of our projects, Vonage, as one of the top 33 exhibits worthy of mention at the Consumer Electronics Show.

In April, PG Exhibits took home a Gold & Silver Key Award from the BMA for the work we did for Vonage and Innovative Spinal Technologies (IST). Both of these projects will be on our website for review in the coming weeks under our Spotlight section. www.pgexhibits.com/spotlight

Growth & Expansion:

Recently we hired Mimi Peckham as Managing Director to run our sales operations for our new Las Vegas office. She's a seasoned industry veteran with experience serving large enterprise accounts such as Xerox, Pergo, Itron, Fisher & Paykel and Potbelly Sandwich Works. Already she's making a huge difference and we anticipate seeing Las Vegas greatly contribute to our growth in 2006.

In order to service our customers better, we've joined the Octanorm Service Partner International Network (OSPI). This will allow us to "Design Here, Build There" leveraging international partners within the network – helping you extend your international reach and budget.
